Suggestions to Teachers

There are forty lines on a page so that teachers may set up their books by listing boys and girls separately or by listing groups. Subject titles were not put in at the top of the pages since these differ so widely. Teachers may designate the subjects and other necessary information at the top. Forty pages should be sufficient to take care of all classes conducted by one teacher for one year.

By designating the next fourteen pages for report card marks, each teacher may record the marks for each pupil for each marking period. Across the top of the page the subjects or attitudes may be copied in for the grade from the report card form. Enough spaces may be skipped after each child's name so that the mark for each period in each subject may be listed one under the other.

The next thirteen pages ruled horizontally only, may be ruled vertically in varying widths. These wider spaces may be used to record chronological ages in years and months, test results, school lunch and milk records, or any of the other pupil accounting activities for which the teacher is responsible.
